The dedicated teaching team at Bankstown Public School encourage their kids to be well-rounded, informed and confident students. They bring this vision to life with the support of their new learning hub.

Transforming their classrooms from “boring, fixed spaces” to flexible learning environments, has meant the students can choose work spaces to suit their individual needs. It’s a vision that the team at Bankstown has worked hard to realise.

Maximising the limited floor space and using colour creatively were essential factors considered by the project team as they worked to redesign these areas.

“the students are now free to sit however they like, and wherever they like.”

Nahla Dennaoui - Assistant Principal at Bankstown Public School.

A tight space is optimised with clever furniture choices.

“as well as having the flexibility to choose their learning environment and workspace, the result has been enhanced student engagement in the classroom.”

Nahla Dennaoui - Assistant Principal at Bankstown Public School.

Teachers pods are significant space savers.
